Le Vieux Port is the original tenement house, believed to date back to the 16th century. Sympathetically refurbished in 2005, this outstanding five-bedroom traditional granite Jersey farmhouse occupies a tranquil rural setting on the west coast of the island. The property has been thoughtfully and professionally restored to retain its many original features and must be viewed to be fully appreciated. Well suited to entertaining and family living, and subject to the necessary permissions, the property may also lend itself to use as a Bed and Breakfast or self-catering accommodation.

The accommodation is arranged over three floors. A welcoming entrance hall leads to both a reception room and a spacious lounge, each featuring oak floors and wood-burning stoves set within original granite fireplaces. There is a substantial open-plan kitchen with a generous dining or sun-lounge area overlooking the rear gardens and patio areas. The kitchen benefits from abundant natural light and features fully tiled floors, exposed oak beams and a well-appointed fitted kitchen with central island, five-ring hob and modern integrated appliances.

On the first floor, the master bedroom features exposed oak beams, a striking stained-glass window and a spacious en-suite wet room comprising bath, separate shower, WC and wash hand basin. This floor also provides a second double bedroom with oak flooring, a third bedroom with en-suite bathroom, and a well-appointed family bathroom with bath and shower.
